SEASIDE HIGH SCHOOL's marching band, competing with mostly larger bands, won first place last week in the Chinese New Year Parade in San Francisco. The band includes letter girls and majorettes and is led by Drum Major Khambrel Marshall. Band Director Jack Bayes said the award was made on the basis of "musical quality and marching excellence." He praised the band for its "determination, hard work and desire to achieve a quality presentation." (Photo by John Perkins made in July 4th Parade.)

LITTLE BIT
...on most anything

It was a bad week, February 15-21.

Many of you read in the Monterey Peninsula Herald, a column by Tom Wicker of the New York Times. He said:

"The Senate of the United States has now cravenly abandoned the policy of racial integration -- 16 years after it was born in a Supreme Court decision, 94 years after the Civil War 'Reconstruction' ended in a similar sell-out, and less than a week after President Nixon, on Lincoln's birthday, gave the signal of surrender."

He had more to say, all of it eloquent and sad.

Right here on the Monterey Peninsula we acted out a similar scene. The voters of the unified school district decisively turned down a $1 tax override.

By no means could the result be attributed exclusively to an 11th-hour appeal by the anti-busing crowd. High property taxes, inflation generally and other problems of the district undoubtedly played more important roles. But you can bet the "fear of cross-busing" was hanging right in there.

Too bad Monterey and Marina won't have to worry so much now that the Pres. and his Southern allies let them off the hook. As they say, if desegregation rules must be applied uniformly throughout the country, they won't be applied, period.

We realize that we have joined our fellow Seasiders of all colors in hypersensitivity, but we almost wish the rest of the Prninsula would leave us alone. Seaside wouldn't have to cross-bus if it were one school district, even with Ft. Ord included. Besides Seaside has enough problems of its own without either getting the shaft from the rest of the Peninsula or getting that patronizingly paternal pat on the head.

Several times we have editorially advocated cross-busing locally, especially a zone plan that would convert entire elementary schools into two- or three-grade complexes. Such a plan would enable a youngster to attend his neighborhood school three or four of his six elementary years.

We're convinced that with study it would be found to be a reasonable and effective plan, accomplishing quality, integrated education.

We can't buy the dodge that there has to be a better way than busing. We've known desegregation was coming for 16 years; if someone had a better plan we would have heard of it.

The one argument that embitters us so says the only real solution to desegregating our schools is to desegregate our neighborhoods.

[illegible]e who has lived in Seaside will [illegible]terically at that one.

Just ask any realtor in town how many receivers get slammed in his ear every day when the caller answering [illegible] of the realtor's ads finds out where [illegible]ouse is located.

At any rate, ironically, when the school trustees decide to come back for another try at the tax override, they shouldn't have to worry a great deal about the cross-busing issue.

It will be interesting to see if they pare down the amount to some 40 cents, as Geroge Gividen prefers, or if they will again average the forecast through 1974-75 and go for $1.

If F.K. (Pete) Arthur, publisher of the Herald, has self-analyzed the "upper end of the generation gap" correctly, the trustees had better do as he says and soul-search.

FKA, after dispensing in NEWS Comments last Wednesday with taxes/ inflation and the illiterate products of our educational system, chided the trustees for their "cavalier" treatment of the sex education flap last spring. And he called cross-busing a "threat." He implied these factors killed the override.

Unhappily we have a hunch FKA said it like it was. Sick. CML

Top citizen

"I DON'T think I deserve this honor," said a humble Glenn Olea, Seaside's Citizen of the Month for February.

An unsuspecting Olea, brought by his wife, Pat, to the regular meeting of the Seaside City Council, was named to the honor Thursday.

The 52-year-old insurance agent, who has lived in Seaside since 1954, is a Philippine Scount, one of the few survivors of the Bataan death march in World War II.

He is currently a member of the Seaside Planning Commission and previously was chairman of the Parks and Recreation Commission for three years. He has also served as a member of the redevelopment agency.

Olea has been president and vice president of the Fil-American Club and was the chairman in 1963 of that group's successful drive to buy an ambulance for the city.

He is a member of Seaside Kiwanis and a board member of Pioneer House. The Oleas live at 1832 Nadina.

Olea is the sixth award winner. Previous Citizens of the Month are Mrs. Charlie Knight, Gavin Work, Mrs. Renee Thomas, Howard Ingels and Charles Sims.

11 wind up on April city ballot

Eleven names and 13 propositions are due to appear on Seaside's city election ballot April 14.

Filing for mayor and two council seats closed last Thursday noon, and voter registration for the local election ended at midnight Thursday.

On the ballot for mayor will be incumbent Mayor Lou Haddad, Councilman Steve Ross and artist Richard Hamilton. (Ross is in the middle of his four-year council term and would remain on the council if not elected.)

For council will be incumbents Bud Houser and Emil Schmidt, and Ed Battle, Henry Burney, Pearl Carey, Pete Cruz, Jerry McGrath and David Mitchell.

Guil Bautista and Dick Joyce, who had taken out nominating papers, failed to file them by the deadline Thursday. Both said they didn't file because there were too many candidates in the race.

The ballot measures, agreed on earleir by the council, will include straw polls on lowering the voting age, withdrawing troops from Vietnam, cross-bussing, sex education, Peninsula - wide government, legalizing marijuana, public tax support of parochial schools, changing the name of Seaside, increasing taxes for a library, and a four-year college on the Peninsula.

Voters will also decide whether mayor's job should be reduced to two years, from the present four, and whether to sell the old city hall and exchange it for the Pit, the shopping center on Broadway just west of Noche Buena.

Voter registration totals for the election will not be available until early March, but the total will be lower than the 5,359 registered for the last election.

Officials oppose center size

Faced with near-solid oppotition to the size of a proposed neighborhood commercial center at Braodway and Yosemite, the developer is considering a smaller, more acceptable size.

Robert Farrell, who represents Clarence Shaw of Fresno, the developer, said this week they would "go back to the books" on the project but indicated that any smaller size would have to be "realistic" enough to return the developer's investment considering today's money market.

In a joint study session of the city council, planning commission and redevelopment agency, Shaw's planned 26,000-square-foot center drew consensus opposition. Most said they had envisioned the center as one offering only convenience shops. The center as proposed calls for 14 tenants including a small market, drug store, small department store, laundromat and dry cleaners and several offices.

Farrell said the $650,000 proposed center, in its third or fourth design, was planned to conform with the neighborhood-commercial zone placed on the two-acre parcel in 1967. It sits next to the recently completed 192-unit Del Monte Manor apartmentsand Del Monte Villa, an 80-unit senior citizens' complex under construction.

Officials at the planning session said they agreed with the concept of the center but said the size should be reduced. A Chamber of Commerce resolution opposed the center.

Shaw was given a 90-day extension by the UR agency in January, and Farrell indicated they would appear before the agency at its regular meeting in April.

Gateway opener

WESTER MOTORS opened the Gateway Auto Center officially Monday. The 27,000-square-foot complex with its 45 employees is the first auto dealership to complete construction in the 73-acre redevelopment project. Grand opening ceremonies with special urban renewal festifivites and a pancake feed by the Seaside Chamber of Commerce are scheduled for March 14. Athat time another occupant of the center, Big O Tires, is due to open. John Perkins Photo.

No agenda but council talks an hour

Despite the absence of an agenda, the Seaside City Council managed to talk for better than an hour last Thursday.

Councilmen did set a public hearing for March 19 on an appeal by Carmel Services, Inc. The group, which runs the GI coffeehouse in the bus station at 1540 Del Monte, has appealed a denial of a double use permit by the planning commission.

That was the council's only official action of substance, although Councilman Oliver Murray did agree to become an alternate to Mayor Lou Haddad as the council's delegate to the Anti-Poverty Council of the Monterey Peninsula.

The council took under advisement a proposal for a Salinas-Monterey Area Transportation Study (SMATS) under the auspices of the Assn. of Monterey County Governments (AMCOG). Bud Houser is the council's delegate.

A study of human relations commission deliberations during the last year and a possible joint meeting was discussed.

In a letter, HR commissioner Henry Hopkins said the council appeared to ignore the efforts of the commission. He suggested a new ordinance for the commission, giving it more powers, including those of subpoena.

SHS trombonist in state band

Seaside High School student David Hollingsworth participated in the California Band Directors' Association "State Honor Band" in concert last weekend at Riverside.

The 18-year-old son of Rev. and Mrs. Owen Hollingsworth, 1945 Waring St., Seaside, was selected from hundreds of high school musicians from all over California.

David played with the trombone section.

The entire family, including six children, made the trip to Riverside, where Mr. and Mrs. Hollingsworth grew up.

SHS students test political climate

Dwight Thompson's civics class at Seaside High School conducted a poll on Seaside politics recently. The results are revealing, but we point out at the outset, that Thompson and his students aren't holding up the results as anything conclusive. He said the validity of the sample could be questioned. So take it for what it's worth.

In the poll 287 persons were queried - 110 males, 153 females and 24 who omitted the question. There were 63 Negroes, 156 whites, 42 others and 26 omits; 189 were registered to vote, 94 weren't.

Here are some of the findings:

More respondents feel the present City Council is doing a good job (123) than not (106) but 56 didn't answer.

At the same time only 60 respondents feel that city government should remain the same while 72 think it should change drastically and 111 substantially.

Fifty-seven per cent approve of urban renewal in Seaside; slightly more approve of the Gateway Project. Most are familiar with Laguna Grande and favor a city park, light industry, a convention facility in that order for its use.

Of those issues to be on the ballot - the poll respondents opposed decisively (177-79) cross-busing for a racial balance in the schools; favored a two-year term for mayor (139-115) over a four-year term; and favored trading the Pit for the old city hall (130-101).

Development of employment opportunities was considered the most pressing problem in Seaside followed by settlement of racial issues, taxes, urban renewal and streets and lighting.

George Mitchell, son of Mrs. Tressie Kirtley, is a literature evangelist for the Seventh-day Adventists and lives in Bakersfield. The wedding date has not been set.

Tools Available

Painting a bedroom, paneling a family room, shampooing a carpet or waxing a floor is duck-soup for the do-it-yourselfer today with the availability of easy-to-rent professional tools and equipment.

According to Norman Bassett, operator of the A to Z rental center located at 1191 Echo Ave., many of the tools stocked for ental are the same as those obtainable only from professional suppliers.

Furniture and rug shampoos, for instance, are stronger and more effective than the weaker products found on supermarket shelves. Floor waxes are of the highest grade.

These products are used in professional machines such as rug shampooers with 13 - 17 inch brushes, portable scribbers that take the work out of cleaning upholstered furniture, and floor maintainers with both scrubbing and polishing attachments. These rent for a few dollars a day.

BOB WOOD REPORTS

A Weekly Column By The 34th District Assemblyman

Even though I find myself back in the hospital as of this writing for a second go around with a slight pneumonia bug, by the time you read this article (if you do read it) I should be back in Sacramento tending to the business of our people in Monterey County.

The next time the doctor says stay in bed and don't return to work until you are completely well, I will take him more seriously. They say trial and error is a great teacher. I think I have learned my lesson by making the error.

You have read quite a bit about the controversial conflict of interest bill concerning elected public officials. This bill was authored by Assemblyman Jesse Unruh, presently a candidate for Governor, in 1969 and was approved by both Democratic and Republican parties. Basically, the new law requires public officials, ranging from city councilmen and water district directors to the Governor and State Supreme Court Justices, to disclose any investment of $10,000 or more, in a business regulated by the State or a local agency, along with a full financial statement.

The bill aparently has not done what it was intended to do and every legislator has received nothing but complaints about the possible repercussions from such a bill.

The bill was approved in April of last year and I didn't arrive in Sacramento until last June. Therefore, I am glad to say I had nothing to do with its passage.

One of the major complaints about the new bill is that it applies the same blanket provision to local public officers, many of whom serve without compensation of any kind, as it does to high ranking State officials. It is hard enough to find willing, competent candidates for these low or non-paying offices without subjecting individuals to a full disclosure of their financial assets no matter how irrelevant to their elective position.

The Carmel City Council realized that it would raise havoc with out democratic system if competent men refused to accept everyday public obligations because they would be forced to list a personal financial statement before the public. Therefore, the Carmel City Council filed an appeal with the local Superior Court claiming unconstitutionality of the law. The Court ruled against the council but the action passed through the Court of Appeals and is now being considered by the State Supreme Court.

When I was in Sacramento last week, between trips to the hospital, the proponents and opponents of the bill met head on. A bill was introduced by Assemblyman Chappie, a personal friend of mine and an assemblyman whose district includes several mountain counties in the northeast part of our State. He proposed to extend the date of compliance with the bill to April 6, thus giving the Assembly and Senate a chance to try and straighten out the difficulties in the original bill. Mr. Unruh vigorously debated on the floor that the bill should be enacted as now written and Mr. Monagan, speaker of the assembly, argued just as vigorously for postponement. The end result shows the power of the people. Only 10 legislators voted with Mr. Unruh. Fifty-eight voted to extend it to see if a better bill couldn't be written by April 6.

Too many legislators, Republican and Democratic alike, had heard from the hundreds of elected officials throughout the State who are not satisfied with the original bill and in this case political affiliation meant nothing. It was (I personally think) democracy in action.

Enough for now....

Your Social Security

By Raymond Mac Donald

Q. My aunt is a Medicare patint in an extended care facility. We want to rent or purchase a wheelchair for her use. Will Medicare pay for it?

A. Not while she is in an extended care facility. Medicare pays for the rental or purchase of durable medical equipment only if it is used in the patient's home. An extended care facility to other institution which provides skilled nursing care is not considered the patient's home. Extended care facilities are expected to supply items such as wheelchairs as a normal part of their service.

q. Exactly how much does Medicare pay for hospital services during a long period of hospitalization?

A. In each benefit period Medicare pays all covered hospital services except the first $52 (deductible) for the first 60 days. For the sistyfirst through ninth day, Medicare pays for all covered services except $13 a day. There is also an additional lifetime reserve of 60 days if the beneficiary needs 'more than 90 days hopital care in the same benefit period. For lifetime reserve days Medicare pays all covered hospital services except $26 a day.

Q. How many days of extended care facility care will Medicare pay for?

A. One hundred days in each benefit period. For the first 20 days, full payment is made by Medicare for covered services. For the twentyfirst through one-hundredth day, the beneficiary pays $6.50 a day as coinsurance.

Q. I'm only 24 years old and it will be years before I'm old enough to retire. What good is Social Security to me?

A. Social Security is more than retirement insurance. While you work you are earning protection for yourself in the event you become disabled. In addition, if you are married (now or in the future) you are earning benefits for your wife and children if you should die. Social Security now paying survivors or disability benefits to over 5 million younger people.

Q. I teach school 10 months of each year even though I am now 65 years old. Other teachers tell me I could receive Social Security checks for the months I don't work. Is this true?

A. Yes, if you have worked under Social Security long enough to become insured, you can receive Social Security benefits for any month in which you earn wages of $140 or less, regardless of your total earnings for the year.

Q. I am drawing a Social Security disability benefit. Am I covered under Medicare?

A. No. Covering disabled individuals under Medicare has been proposed and given serious consideration, but so far these individuals are not under Medicare.

Q. When we took my father to the hospital, the admitting office was hesitant about admitting him as a Medicare patient because he didn't have his Medicare card with him. He is over 65 and had his Social Security card with him. Why couldn't they have used that?

A. It had to be established that your father was entitled to Medicare benefits. The Social Security card doesn't do that. The easiest way to show Medicare entitlement is to show the Medicare card. Your father should carry his Medicare card with him at all times so that it will be readily available whenever needed.

Q. I am scheduled to undergo cataract surgery in 2 weeks. I will have to wear eyeglasses following the surgery and my doctor says Medicare will help pay for them. However, my neighbor says you were unable to reimburse her for the glasses she recently purchased. Who is right.

A. Medicare can help pay for the eyeglasses or contact lenses when they are used to replace the lens of the eye because of surgical removal on congenital absence. This includes corrective lenses after a cataract operation.

Q. I am nearsighted and I need new eyeglasses. I understand the law was changed so that Medicare will now pay for them. Am I right?

A. You are wrong. Where an examination is performed for the purpose of prescribing, fitting, or changing eyeglasses, Medicare will not pay for the examination or for the eyeglasses.

CONSUMER POWER

By Yvonne Earnst

Are the labels and boxtops you've been saving tha last couple of weeks beginning to bulge out of theri temporary storage area? Probably so. They accumulate quickly. And, they're "money in the bank," when used for refung offers, so let me tell you of an inexpensive filing system I devised for this purpose.

For this file, you need ordinary brown paper grocery sacks and a cardboard box about the width of a grocery sack. If you get the box at your local grocery store, the top will already be cut off very neatly, just as you want it. The sides should be at least 8 inches high.

To construct the file folders, you will need only scissors and a stapler. First, fold down the top of the sack about 2 inches, turn to the inside, and crease sharply. This gives a neat finish to the top edge. Do not cut off the top edge, as the paper may cut your hand when you reach inside.

Next, fold the sack to its original flat shape. Measure down about 10 inches (or less, if you wish) and cut straight across with the scissors. You now have a cylinder of apaer with both ends open. Folding the paper flat., staple a seam across the bottom to close it. You may, paper before stapling the seam closed, but this makes a bulkier package.
make a bulkier package.

With the bottom stapled shut, you now have an envelope with expanding sides. Begin putting these, open side up, into the box. With a felt-tip pen, print the category of labels or boxtops you will keep in each envelope on the front top edge of the envelope.

You will probably find that you will give some brand-names individual filing envelopes--names such as Lawry's, Kraft, Birds Eye, Green Giant, Campbell's, Heinz, etc. Any label from these companies is worth saving for a later refund.

You will also want to specify some of the filing envelopes for families of products -- such as detergents, soaps, canned fruits, canned vegetables, frozen baked products, etc.-- if you use severl brands other than the ones previously mentioned here.

You will also need one labeled "miscellaneous." Then, as you find that filing envelope becoming crowded, you can make further divisions.

Alphabetize these grocery sack filing envelopes in your file box and you now have a very low-cost (a few staples) filing system for your refunding.

If you have received, as yet, any of the refunding publications previously described in this column, you know what a gold mine that file will soon become. When Birds Eye, for instance, announced a refund offer of $1 for 8 of their new 5-minute frozen vegetables fronts, all I had to do was reach in my Birds Eye file envelope, count out 8 fronts, and send them in to the company.

The money usually takes about six weeks to arrive from the tme the lavels are sent.
But, I have had a few arrive in only two weeks, and have even had some take three months.

Remenber, please, in your enthusiasm, that these offers are all one to a family or one to each mailing address. To abuse this rule is to invite these companies to discontinue refund offers in the future. And, since this is one form of advertising that definitely benefits the consumer, it would really be unfortunate if a greedy few caused its end.

If you do have extra labels, and just can't resist the temptation to redeem them for cash, stop and think about someone you could designate as the recipient of the money who would not object to receiving a gift of this type. There are many people we all know among our families and friends who need money, but would refuse an outright gift of money from you. Receiving quarters and even dollars through the mail from companies to which you merely sent labels or boxtops is surely easier for them to accept. If it will make the recipient more comfortable, let him repay you the cost of the postage and envelopes from the refund income. That should remove all objections.

Next week, we will discuss how to set up a small notebook that will serve as a shopping list to take to the store with you as well as a record book in which to keep track of current refund offers, when you sent them in, and when you received the money.

And you will receive, from now on, a tidy sum from your refunding efforts.

WHO CARES

M. J. Vercoe

The Age of the Fad or All Aboard the Bandwagon

Remember the history accounts of the old religious crusades of the 11th and 12th centuries? Hundreds of thousands of fanatics blindly and bloodily cut several swaths of destruction across Europe in an attempt to save something in the Holy Land.

The initial motivation, Pope Urban the Second's ambition to extend his western power over the eastern church by uniting them, was never realized. And the display of barbarism put on by the hordes of crusaders wiped out forever any possible chance of uniting the churches.

And, even today, we find ourselves blinded with enthusiasm to the extent that well-meant efforts in fields of need oftentimes backfire disastrously.

A number of years ago it became the popular thing to do to champion the rights of prison inmates. There was admittedly need for changes in our prison system, but the concept of championing wrongdoers was soon spread far and wide to include a dangerous permissiveness toward crime, is hardly need to outline the results. Present day interpretations of laws, general apathy, almost complete disregard of the rights of victims and of law-abiding citizens, and an almost suicidal enjoyment of seeing law enforcement agencies frustrated in their efforts - these all add up to the "crime out of control" condition we have today. And we have the audacity to wonder how it happened.

In another example, some fifteen years ago some politicians woke up one morning and suddenly realized that the minority vote, if handled right, could be the deciding factor in elections. Thus began a program of "all of a sudden righteous indignation" about conditions that had gone unnoticed for at least a hundred years.

The need for reform is unquestioned. But the motivation and the ultimate results can bear scrutiny. Some very dedicated men devoted years of effort, and some lost their lives, in trying to achieve equality and recognition for their people, and this could have been done, and no doubt some day will be achieved. But politicians and some well-meaning people who are not politicians who encourage minority groups to riot and otherwise alienate their cause - these people, in their enthusiasm and because it is the "ting to do", are in the long run very possibly in the same position AS Pope Urban the Second, who was great on ambition and ideas, but short on overall results.

The latest fad, of course, and almost overwhelming the civil rights movement, is the pollution bandwagon. Politicians lost absolutely no time in approaching this problem. Some of them are doing it out of genuine concern, for example Assemblyman Bob Wood. Others, a President of a great country, for example, recognize a pollution stand as a political expediency and as a hope rather than a threat.

Pollution is a threat to people, but a hope for new government anti-pollution spending programs.

Let us all hope that planting nuclear bombs in each other's back yards never becomes a fad - the "thing to do" if you want to keep up with your neighbors.

CASE NO. MDR 802
APPLICATION FOR PUBLICATION OF SUMMONS AND ORDER

ELICABETH CHILDS, Petitioner,
-and-
FREDERICK R. CHILDS, Respondent.

I, THE UNDERSIGNED, DECLARE:
That I am the Petitioner in the above-entitled Petition; That the respondent cannot with due diligence be found within the State of California; The facts of the due diligence used in the effort to find FREDERICK R. CHILDS are as follows: I checked with his ex-employer, Department of Motor Vehicles, and from his best friend in Los Angeles, however, they all could not furnish the whereabouts of the respondent.
Petitioner and respondent were living together at 3082 Zanetta Dr., Marina, California. However, on June 21, 1969, without any reason at all, respondent disserted me, and on the 27th day of June, I received a letter from the respondent to the effect that he won't be coming back anymore.
I searched the telephone directories of Monterey County and the City of Salinas, the City Directory of Salinas, and the Registrar of Voters, and have been unable to fine his name listed therein.
The creditors of respondent were looking for him. They also made effort to locate the respondent for the purpose of collecting certain obligations which he owed them. I communicated with them and they have been looking for him since July 1969, but they were unable to locate him. They told me that they canvassed his friends, relatives, the Motor Vehicles Department, and other sources of information which were available to them, but they have been unable to locate him.
A good ground for legal separation exists against respondent and in favor of Petitioner as shown by the Petition on file herein, which Petition is hereby incorporated by reference, the same as though fully set forth at length.
That the Seaside News Sentinel is a newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Seaside, County of Monterey, State of California; That the publication of the Summons herein in the said newspaper is most likely to give notice of the legal separation herein between Petitioner and respondent.
WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays that this Court order publication of the Summons herein to be published in the Seaside News Sentinel, once a week for four (4) consecutive weeks.
I declare, under penalty of perjury, that the foregoing is true and correct.
EXECUTED on February 11, 1970, at Seaside, California.

Tax Deduction

A portion of last year's California vehicle registration fee is deductible in computing state and federal income txes.

Department of Motor Vehicles Director Robert C. Cozens said motorists may deduct all but $11 from the fee paid on each passenger vehicle and all but $12 on each station wagon fee. "These amounts," he said, "were strictly registration payments and not deductible.

"The balance was a two percent tax based on the value of the vehicle, collected in lieu of local property taxes and returned to cities and counties where the vehicle is kept. This 'in lieu' portion is deductible."

Sales or use tax also is deductible if new or used vehicles were purchased last year.

Cozens reminded motorists, however, that fees paid this year are not deductible until next year when the 1970 tax forms are filed.

MEMBER F.D.I.C.

NOW WELLS FARGO BANK IS OPEN AT NIGHT TO DO YOUR TAXES.

We've added Income Tax Preparation for individuals to our long list of financial services.

It means we have to work nights during tax time, but we feel it's worth it.

All you have to do is sit down with one of our bank officers and he'll record all the necessary information. Then the computer prepares both your Federal and State returns. And we guarantee their accuracy.

It's that simple. And the service could cost you as little as $9.

So just call one of the Wells Fargo offices listed here to make an evening appointment between 6 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Then come by in the daytime to any of our 250 offices and let us take a look at some of your other financial needs.
